Bio

Dutch Holly is a duo of independent recording artists and performers residing in Arizona, U.S.A. Their indie/alternative pop/rock recordings reflect distinct musical sensibilities and have been featured in film, television, and a number of their songs appear on a Universal Production Music compilation distributed internationally.

Dutch Holly recently released a catchy indie-pop single “Let the Light In” with an accompanying music video. “Let the Light In” has enjoyed regional success and is currently in rotation on several college and independent radio stations throughout the American Southwest.

Dutch Holly earned a reputation as a live-looping act, and was described in a show review by long-time Phoenix, AZ music critic Serene Dominic as “a band that does the live sound-on-sound looping thing the way it always should be done.” While they still employ looping, Dutch Holly now uses MIDI programming, programmed beats, and live-looping blended with live instruments and vocal effects to create a danceable psychedelic sound that mesmerizes critics and fans alike and has garnered new followers everywhere the duo plays.
